Dear Neag School Alumni:

Hello from UConn's Neag School of Education!

I am very excited to take this opportunity to introduce myself as the new Director of Alumni Relations for the Neag School of Education. There is so much to be proud of as a graduate of this School, including our recent U.S. News & World Report ranking of No. 26 and the excitement of welcoming our new dean, Dr. Gladis Kersaint, this July. I am thrilled to be joining an outstanding community.

Last weekend, we honored seven outstanding Neag School alumni graduates at the 18th annual Alumni Awards Celebration. On April 7, we'll be hosting our annual career fair, and welcoming back many alumni representatives from school districts across Connecticut. At our Honors Celebration on April 20, we'll be recognizing the commitment of our supporters through recognition of the exceptional student scholars who will benefit from their support this year.

In my new role, I hope to provide more opportunities for you to reconnect with the Neag School of Education, your classmates, teachers, and our students. Building connections with our alumni, near and far, is critically important to our School. I look forward to learning about your experience as a student in the Neag School of Education, and hope you'll reach out to share your thoughts and ideas on how we can continue to enhance your lifelong relationship with UConn.

Thank you for the opportunity to work with such an exceptional group of alumni.

Sincerely,

Caitlin Trinh '07
